Major Project | Weekly Log Guidelines (AY 2025-26)

Your project diary or weekly log is more than just a record book, it essentially reflects your dedication, teamwork, and consistent effort throughout the project. Maintaining it regularly helps you stay organized, track progress, and present your contributions effectively during evaluations. It also highlights the step-by-step progress of the project and the individual contributions of each team member.

The weekly log carries 5 marks per evaluation (4 evaluations in an academic year) and must be produced at every evaluation. Marks are awarded individually, based on each member's contribution and performance, making it a vital record of your professionalism, accountability, and commitment to the project.

Suggested Notebook for a Project Weekly Log:

Classmate (72 pages) • Size: A4 (29.7 × 21 cm) • Ruling: Single line

Format and Content: Each weekly log entry (one page is sufficient) should include the following details

- Date & Time of Meeting
- Duration
- Members Present
- Members Absent
- Tasks Decided in Previous Meeting (from 2nd meeting onwards)
- Work Completed
- Contributions of Team Member (clearly mention individual work)
- Supervisor's Comments and Signature (with date & time)

Rules & Expectations:

- Maintain an index page (with date, brief purpose, and page no. for each entry).
- The number of entries should match the meetings shown in your PPT (for each evaluation).
- Ideally, 25+ meetings per semester must be conducted and documented in the weekly log.
- Information must be neatly written, concise, and clear.
- Clearly mention the group number on the top right side of the Index page and on the cover of your weekly log.

Weekly Log – Good Practices | Stay Consistent & Responsible

- Meet your supervisor regularly (preferably twice a week) to discuss your project work.
- Always take the initiative to contact your supervisor and arrange meetings. Don't wait for your supervisor to call you.
- Maintain a weekly log signed by your supervisor in every meeting, starting from the very first week.
- Regular meetings build momentum, ensure steady progress, and demonstrate your sincerity.

Think of your project diary as your personal growth record - a proof of your commitment, discipline, and teamwork. Every neat, honest entry brings you one step closer to success. Teachers value sincerity and dependability, while teammates never forget those who give their best and uplift others. Be that person!
